MILESTONES IN COLLECTING—130TH ANNIVERSARY EXHIBITION

30 May to 18 October

In Geelong Gallery's 130th anniversary year, this exhibition celebrates the key works that define the Collection and the moments that mark its development. From Frederick McCubbin's A bush burial (1890) acquired in the first year of collecting in 1900, and John Brack's The hunt (1988) purchased in the Gallery's centenary year in 1996, to Emily Kam Kngwarry's Anooralya (or Anwerlarri)—Yam Dreaming acquired to mark the Gallery's 125th anniversary in 2021, and other major works that form part of our nationally significant Collection.

CLAUDE MONET AND AUSTRALIAN IMPRESSIONISM

30 May to 18 October

Claude Monet's Haystacks, midday (1890) is one of a series of paintings the French artist completed of wheat stacks in a field adjoining his property at Giverny near Paris. Long revered as Claude Monet's most exquisite series, the Haystack paintings are remarkable for the range of light and weather conditions portrayed.

On loan from the National Gallery of Australia through the Sharing the National Collection initiative, Haystacks, midday is displayed alongside works from Geelong Gallery's Collection by Australian plein air painters of the late-19th and early 20th centuries, many of whom played a key role in the development of Australian Impressionism and shared Monet's interest in capturing various effects of light, atmospheric conditions and seasonal shifts in nature.

DISCOVERING THE IMPRESSIONISTS

Discovering the Impressionists: Paul Durand-Ruel, Art Dealer Among the Artists presents more than 70 paintings from across two generations of Impressionist artists, the majority from private collections in France and never before seen in Australia. Underpinning it all is the remarkable legacy of Paul Durand-Ruel—the art dealer who staked everything on a movement the establishment refused to accept.
